THE description of our Stock, in our Catalogue of 1846, applies with so much exactness to our present collection, made by the same member of our House during the Summer of 1853, that we repeat it, with only slight qualifications.

“The larger portion of the Books contained in this Catalogue have been selected from the European markets, during the past season, by one of our Firm. The editions are generally those best fitted for Libraries, printed on large types, and substantially bound; equally avoiding, in these respects, the extremes of cheapness and extravagance. The collector will find here some of the rarer English Books; and gentlemen forming Libraries, it is believed, can hardly consult any American Catalogue where they will meet with so large a number of valuable Standard Works. We beg particularly to call attention to the very valuable French collection of the Messrs. Didot. Perhaps there is no other instance of so valuable, and, at the same time, beautifully printed and cheap a collection of books in the world. We refer especially to the “CHEFS-D’ŒUVRE DE LA LITTÉRATURE FRANÇAISE in 18mo.”

A separate Catalogue of our extensive collection of Law Books has just been published, which the profession can receive gratis, on application.

Our friends are reminded, that orders for Books from England, France, and Germany are forwarded regularly, by every Steamer from Boston, to competent and faithful agents in London, Paris, and Leipsic.

- 325 — Poets, a new edition, now in course of publication, to be edited by Francis J. Child, A. M., Boylston Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory in Harvard College.

This edition will embrace all that is of general interest and permanent value in English Poetry, from Chaucer to Wordsworth. The whole works of the most distinguished authors will be given, and selections from the writings of the minor poets. Several volumes of fugitive and anonymous poetry will be added, besides what may be taken from the publications of Ritson, Percy, Ellis, Brydges, Park, &c., of the Percy Society, and other Printing Clubs. Particular care will be bestowed on Chaucer, and on the English and Scotch Ballad Poetry. Pains will be taken to secure a correct text; and each work will be accompanied with Biographical, Historical, and Critical Notices, and with Glossaries, where such assistance is needed.

It is intended that the volumes of this collection shall invite perusal, as well by their form and appearance, as by the character of their contents. The size and style of the volumes will be those of Pickering's Aldine Poets, and such of the works of that edition as fall entirely within the plan of the present collection, will be embodied in it.

Each separate work will be sold by itself, and the price of each volume will be 75 cents.

The following volumes are now ready: —

Butler . . .	2 vols.	Milton . . .	3 vols.
Collins . . .	1 “	Parnell . . .	1 “

This work has been conducted on the same principles, and is designed mainly for the use of the same persons, as the "Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities." The articles have been founded on a careful examination of the Original Sources; the best Modern Authorities have been diligently consulted; and no labor has been spared, in order to bring the subject to the present state of philological learning. The Lives of Painters, Sculptors, and Architects have been treated at considerable length, and an account is given of all their works still extant, or of which there is any record in ancient writers.

- "The value of this collection, as illustrative of the writings of Washington, as tending to throw light upon the original facts of history, going back as they do to the highest sources, cannot but be apparent to all who examine these pages. Their writers were among the most prominent actors in the eventful period embraced within the dates we have given. They all wrote with a full knowledge of what was going on around them. Their statements possess a freshness, a weight of authority, an accuracy and interest that make them of the greatest value. Their characters, influence, and agency in the events they describe may often be gathered from their letters. It is, in a word, an invaluable publication, and no library of American History can be complete without it."

"Office of the Secretary of the Senate, March 11, 1850.

The Secretary of the Senate has the honor to report, that the Synoptical Index to the Laws and Treaties of the United States, which, by a Resolution of the 11th of January, 1849, he was directed to have prepared, has been completed, and is now submitted. In executing the work, the former Index has been verified and corrected, the new matter incorporated with the old, and references made throughout the whole to the edition of Laws published by Bioren and Duane, with its continuation to the 3d of March, 1849, to the edition of the Statutes at Large, published by Little, Brown & Co., to the same period; and to the Pamphlet Laws subsequently published, under the authority of the Department of State, to the end of the last Session of Congress.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

ASBURY DICKENS,

Secretary of the Senate.

HON. MILLARD FILLMORE,

Vice-President of the United States and President of the Senate."

Boston, Little, Brown & Co., 1853

This is the original English edition, with the author's last revision.

"That this is the fourth edition of Dr. Ure's Dictionary, is one of the best proofs of its merit. Another is to be found in the fact, that since the first edition appeared it has had no competitor to contest its claims to public favor. It has always been so far superior to every thing else of the kind in print, as to discourage rivalry."—New York Evening Post.

"These volumes are a collection of imperishable models in constitutional law, jurisprudence, international law, diplomacy, finance, legislation, and literature — a collection not to be matched by this, and hardly by any other country, in capital and multiform excellence. There is not a page in these books which may not give the world assurance of a transcendent intellect; not a page which will not make posterity prouder of the land of their fathers. These productions will be perpetuated as long as the English language endures." — New York Courier and Enquirer.

"In company with the writings of Washington and Franklin, they constitute a most essential part of the history of our republic. No lapse of time can destroy their value, so long as the world shall feel an interest in knowing how the greatness of the American nation was built up and preserved, and how the genius and spirit of the people in the nineteenth century were embodied and personified in one eminent individual — emphatically the AMERICAN STATESMAN." Boston Courier.

"Of the interest that attaches to this journal, the fidelity and success with which it has been prepared for publication, and the value of the work to all who have any interest in the earlier days of our good Commonwealth, it would be, of course, superfluous to say any thing. These things are already matters of familiarity to all our readers. We need only, therefore, inform them, that an edition in every way worthy of these time-honored annals has been issued, to assure the prompt attention of all whose library still lacks a work so necessary and indispensable to every son of Massachusetts." Boston Atlas.
